

My friend to humanity is Issa Rae. Issa Rae is an actor, writer and producer. She went from an awkward Black girl creating youtube videos about her misadventures in life, to becoming an actress, writer, and producer of her own show, an entrepreneur, and all around humble mogul. The behaviors she engages in to suggest her friendship with humanity are prevalent in the moments when she is her authentic self. She exudes thoughtfulness, and dedication to uplifting her community and the voices of Black folks. She is not about simply highlighting the attributes of the well-known artist/celebrities, instead she is all about introducing the world to community rockstars that deserve a national platform.

What informs her friendliness is her dedication to always honoring the community that aided in helping her become the woman she is today. Community is HUGE to her, and it is evident in everything she does.
